The Canadian Institute of Management is proud to have accredited business administration programs at the Gerald Schwartz School of Business, St. Francis Xavier University. The following diploma course is now accredited by the Canadian Institute of Management:

• Bachelor of Business Administration

Upon becoming a CIM member, graduates have now qualified for the Certificate in Management and Administration Studies (CIMA) from the Institute. Once a member has achieved two (2) years of Canadian management and administration experience supplemented by references, they may apply for the Certified in Management (C.I.M.) designation. The designation brings together both academic and practical experience creating a valuable and creative management professional. The highly regarded C.I.M. designation is recognized across Canada as acknowledging Canada's leaders in management and administration for over 70-years.

Let the Canadian Institute of Management help you on the road to your career as a professional manager. Become part of a team that will recognize your achievements today, and help you be successful in the future.

Designation requirements are outlined on the CIM national and branch websites. For more information, or to pursue your application, contact the National Office of the Canadian Institute of Management or the Maritime Branch of the Canadian Institute of Management.
